

Pleasanton Schools Trustee search narrows to six

PLEASANTON—The Pleasanton Joint School District Board of Trustees has selected the six finalists it will publicly interview for the vacant board position starting at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The six were picked from an original applications list of 15 and include Mary Blackstone, 3513 Churchill Court; James Griffen, 3036 Chardonnay Drive; Candy Ingram, 863 Palomino Drive; Dennis Reidy, 4144 Sharab Court; Carol Rogers, 327 Amador Court, and Ron E. Schneider, 650 Orofino Court.

Trustees, following interviews Tuesday, hope to come to a decision and announce the successor to Dr. Guy Clark that evening. Clark resigned because of health and personal reasons a month ago, moving his practice to Albuquerque, New Mexico.

At a special meeting Friday noon, trustees discussed guidelines for interviewing after deciding to interview six applicants.

When the candidates arrive Tuesday evening, a draw will be made to determine order of interview. Candidates may sit through the public interviews of others or leave, as they wish. However, interviews will involve just the candidate scheduled and board members in dialogue.

Each of the six will meet with the four trustees, president Al Dutchover, clerk Betty Nostrand, Joe Schwab and Karen Finn, for a maximum of 20 minutes. A time clock will be utilized to underscore the trustees' intentions of fairness to all.

Definite question guidelines were not worked out, though Dutchover suggested that trustees try and talk with the six finalists on specific school matters over the weekend and tomorrow.

Mrs. Finn and Mrs. Nostrand initially asked that the board come to a decision on Wednesday, rather than Tuesday night, and make the announcement Wednesday.

Schwab asked that the staff send letters of appreciation to all 15 applicants.

Questions, then, will generally be broad in scope. Following the completion of interviews at the district offices on Main Street, board members will huddle privately to reach a decision, possibly by 10 p.m. Tuesday.

The successful candidate will serve out Clark's unexpired term through next March. That board seat as well as those of Dutchover and Finn are up next March.

If the candidate chooses to seek a full term, he or she will NOT be listed as an incumbent.

The six candidates and their occupations are as follows: Schneider, cost analyst with Lockheed; Rogers, housewife and active in PTA; Reidy, real estate salesman; Ingram, director of Hotline; Griffen, senior manufacturing engineer for Accurax of Mountain View; Blackstone, housewife and member of District Title I committee and president of Blue Angels at Veterans Hospital.

Each of the board members were polled for their six selections, as follows:

SCHWAB—Schneider, Rogers, Reidy, John W. Florence, Blackstone and Ingram.

FINN—Griffen, Schneider, Rogers, Ingram, Blackstone, Reidy.

NOSTRAND—(Selected four) Griffen, Schneider, Rogers, and Ingram.

DUTCHOVER—Griffen, Brian Hoyt, Reidy, Rogers, Schneider, and Dr. Raymond Serafin.

Schneider and Rogers were the choices of all four board members while Ingram, Reidy and Blackstone were selected by three. Mrs. Blackstone was the choice of two trustees and became the sixth and final candidate. The board, earlier, had decided to pick six finalists.

Serafin was a candidate in the last Pleasanton school board election.

Poll favors I-680 crossing that can be expanded later

PLEASANTON—An impromptu poll on the Las Positas overcrossing issue was dropped off at City Hall Friday, taking its place beside the official city poll, but not being counted in with it.

The citizens' poll had 27 ballots, all of them signed, and the city poll to date has 296 ballots, all of them anonymous.

The citizens' poll was the work of Nina Sanchez, a Valley Trails resident who sends two children to Foothill High School and who strongly favors building an overcrossing at Las Positas Boulevard.

The 27 residents who participated in her poll signed their ballots. They won't be added into the totals for the city poll, since the alternatives are different from the city poll.

Sanchez's poll lists these alternatives: overpass for pedestrians only; a pedestrian overpass which can be expanded to vehicles later; an overpass for autos and pedestrians; and any other suggestions.

The city's poll, published in the three newspapers originating in the valley, lists these alternatives: no overcrossing; pedestrian and bikes only with no expansion; pedestrian and bikes capable of later expansion for vehicles; two lanes for vehicles which later can be expanded to four lanes, including bikes and pedestrians in the first stage; the full four lanes plus bikes and pedestrians; and a full interchange, complete with on and off ramps. The balloting Friday showed the following tallies: 1, 32 votes; 2, 63; 3, 28; 4, 133; 5, 24; and 6, 16.

Monday will be the last day for balloting. Counters which come in the mail that day or are personally delivered to City Hall will be added to the total which now stands at 296.

Raymond leads Murphy in campaign spending

OAKLAND—Challenger Valerie Raymond leads her incumbent opponent John Murphy in both campaign contributions and expenditures for the first filing period in the race to the November general election.

Committee and candidate statements for the seven week period ending Sept. 20 were filed last week with the county registrar of voters' office.

Raymond, who challenges Murphy after finishing four percentage points behind him in the June primary, has collected $5,007, including $3,000 in campaign loans.

Murphy has received $2,161 for the same period. He lists a $341 personal loan from himself to his reelection committee and a $150 non-monetary contribution in office space from the Murco Development Co. of Fremont.

Raymond's expenditures total $5,332, with nearly $2,000 going for bus advertising. She spent another $838 for posters for the buses, plus $900 to Candidate's Outdoor Graphic Service (COGS) for signs and $711 to Acorn Press for printing.

The lion's share of Murphy's $3,148 in expenses went for badges—$620 worth—with $341 in telephone bills and another $161 in postage. He also spent $105 in newspaper advertising and $95 for secretarial work from Maureen Myers of Fremont.

The gross figure includes $1,300 in "accrued expenses" that start with the period.

Raymond received a $250 cash contribution from Berchen Meat Co. owner Jack Perry, $100 from Marilyn Singer, listed as "housewife," and another $100 from "educational consultant" Miriam Miller.

Fifty-dollar contributors include Martha Ellen Kirschbaum, "vocational counselor" at Chabot College; Thomas Simonen, a physicist at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, and Livermore "housewives" Barbara Stevenson and Jeanne Thomas.

The Castro Valley Democratic Club also gave her $50—her only "committee" contribution in the period—while $1,188 was raised in contributions of less than $50 each.

Of Murphy's $1,670 in cash contributions, $1,450 came in $50 or larger packages, including $500 from Berkeley Farms Controller Norman J. Alberts; $400 from attorney John M. Thorpe; $350 from outdoor advertisers Foster & Kleiser of Los Angeles; $100 from Graham Nissen, who is listed as "retired," and $50 from Universal Travel owner Rae H. Ising and Linton & Palia Developers' owners Al Palia and Tom Linton.

Raymond's $3,000 in loans include a $400 personal loan from herself to her reelection committee, and $2,600 from Lawrence Livermore Laboratory physicist Steve Kiergan.

Where Raymond shows a $3,325 deficit at the end of the period, Murphy lists a $718 surplus.

Murphy spent nearly $25,000 in financing first in the June primary.

Raymond's expenses totaled some $9,000.

Petitions hit head of Murray District

At least three residents of Pleasanton are circulating petitions supporting "questioning of procedures of the superintendent of the Murray School District."

Organizers intend on presenting the petitions to Dr. Ted Woy, president of the Murray board, at Monday night's closed session.

The meeting is scheduled for the superintendent's office at district headquarters on Brighton in Dublin, starting at 8 o'clock.

A spokesman for the group said they have been "unhappy ever since facts concerning the March bond issue were misrepresented."

The group also says it supports questioning as brought to the fore by trustee Bob Foster last Monday's board meeting.

Foster voiced discontent, initially, over alleged deletion of his comments concerning school bus policies from school board minutes. Later, Foster assailed Superintendent Donald Williams over supposed incompleteness of school enrollment figures, and the resource personnel program.

Foster cited Williams for alleged planning shortcomings and, at the tag end of the public meeting, urged board members to review Williams' contract with the district by December.

Williams' contract with the district was renewed last December for two years. Thus he has less than 1½ years to go on the pact.

Indications this past week were that Foster's discontent with various district procedures involving Williams and business manager Phil Chubb has been simmering for some time.

The spokesman for those carrying the petitions said the action in the Pleasanton section of the Murray district is also intended as "an expression to Foster that we are happy he is standing up....we want the other trustees to know we don't want them to be intimidated."

The spokesman indicated the petition action might be carried on past Monday—"It all depends on what kind of a response we get Monday night."

Potential hazard?

Does the swimming pool on Vomic Road in Dublin, next to Dublin School, still have potential for community use or is it a hazard? Idle for more than two years, the main pool is partially filled with slimy, algae-ridden water. Unsubstantiated reports disclose that frogs and other water life can be found in and about the pool area, which is locked to the public. Boys in foreground contemplate its former station as "the main recreational swim center in Dublin." Area is now the responsibility of the Murray School District.

Car wash on council agenda Monday night

PLEASANTON—A public hearing to allow automatic car washes in the central commercial district will highlight the city council meeting tomorrow.

The council will meet at 8 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, 30 W. Angela St.

The proposed ordinance change arose because a gas station dealer on Main Street and West Angela has proposed an automatic car wash for property next to his station on the Angela Street block.

Other items of interest include ordinance changes to reduce the distance between structures in residential areas and allow wider driveways on some lots subject to city approval.

The council also will have a public hearing on adoption of a conflict of interest code for the city council in accord with the Political Reform Act of 1974.

Rhoda Owen honored by VCSD

DUBLIN—After sixteen years of service, Rhoda M. Owen is going to have a street and a court named after her.

Owen retired as District Clerk for the Valley Community Services District on Aug. 31, 1976.

The announcement about the street and court was made by VCSD Director Ron Hyde at a Champagne Luncheon held Friday in honor of Owen. Supervisor John D. Murphy instigated the resolution.

The proposed Rhoda St. and Rhoda Ct. will be located near Dublin water tank number one west of San Ramon Rd.

A new subdivision is going to be developed in the vicinity and a proposed extension of Vomic Rd. is included in those plans. Rhoda St. and Ct. will connect to the new portion of Vomic.

Congressman Pete Stark sent a letter stating that a resolution of commendation regarding Rhoda Owen be made a part of the Congressional Record.

Assemblyman Floyd Mori also sent a letter of commendation.

VCSD members and directors presented Owen with a set of luggage and a golden plaque honoring her. The directors gave her a 12 foot long scroll humorously worded. It was signed by the directors plus numerous friends.

There were several other letters of praise from various members of the community.

"What can one say after this?" Owen asked. "It has all made me feel so good. Thank everybody for coming."

ROUND TWO

Valerie Raymond vs. Eugene Hinton

Editor, The Times:

We have always felt up to now that The Times was very fair in its coverage and made sincere efforts to check out its stories with both sides. We were therefore rather surprised to see the front-page article in Thursday's paper regarding the September meeting of the Pleasanton Democratic Club, with its totally one-sided coverage of the confrontation that was alleged to have taken place.

Mr. Hinton is, of course, entitled to express his opinion in whatever words he chooses. However, since he does not appear to draw any line between truth and distortion, we would like to add some details.

Mr. Steffenauer, the vice - president, started the meeting since Mr. Hinton had not arrived by 8:10 p.m. Mr. Hinton arrived in time to ask for committee reports and to give the president's report.

Assemblyman Floyd Mori presented an interesting summary of proposed property tax reform and made a strong call for unity among Democrats. Mr. Hinton was disconcerted when his wife arrived in an angry mood. He hurried out to the parking lot and a loud quarrel ensued, which caused a member to close the door so that Mr. Mori could be heard.

Proceeding with the business part of the meeting, Mr. Hinton read aloud a statement by Mrs. Bianchi, secretary of the Club, in which she questioned the procedures at the August meeting. She stated her belief that an endorsement achieved that way was virtually meaningless. Mr. Hinton mentioned that, although he had misplaced the attendance sign-in sheet, there were eight votes to endorse Murphy, two abstentions and no nays.

At this point Mrs. Raymond stated that as a member of the Club, she felt that Mr. Hinton had owned her the courtesy of giving her an opportunity to speak to the Club. She pointed out that she has been endorsed by an 18-1 vote by the Democratic County Central Committee which is elected by all voting Democrats throughout the County. She felt it was unfortunate that the Club had caused dissension among its members by the action at the August meeting.

It is understandable that Mr. Hinton was in an emotional state by this time after the embarrassing incident with his wife and the public criticism by Mrs. Raymond. However, it should be pointed out that absolutely no rudeness, no anger and no foul language were used by anyone during the course of the meeting. The very misleading statements in The Times that implied such was the case were in very poor taste on Mr. Hinton's part, although in line with the kind of behavior that we have come to expect from some of Mr. Murphy's supporters.

The meeting continued with a discussion of possible by-laws changes. A straw vote was taken to see how members felt about amending the by-laws to provide for notice of possible endorsements. A majority of the members present supported such a change. Attempts were made to word a possible by-laws amendment, but Mr. Hinton requested that a written presentation be made at the October meeting.

In conclusion, we would hope that in the future The Times would attempt to provide a more balanced presentation of meetings at which their reporter was not present.

Editor, The Times:

After receiving phone calls from the two Valley papers regarding the Tuesday night meeting of the Pleasanton Area Democratic Club, I feel I should tell it in my own words.

At the August meeting John Murphy attended. As we did not have a speaker for the evening I asked Mr. Murphy if he would say a few words, he agreed. When Mr. Murphy finished with talking one of the members ... moved that we endorse John Murphy for supervisor, there were three seconds to the motion, ...

I reminded the group that endorsements could be made at any meeting, that it required a 2/3 majority of the members present and only paid members could vote. The vote was for endorsement, no one was against the endorsement, as club president I did not vote. Also Mr. Murphy did not vote.

I personally support Mr. Murphy, however if I were against him I had not choice, as the by-laws are clear on this matter. This was a month ago. Now back to Tuesday's meeting.

Valerie Raymond and three of her female henchmen attended. All claiming to be paid members, this may be true, I cannot recall ever seeing any of her henchmen at a meeting and do not know their names ... As for Ms. Raymond, she was a member in the '75 year but I have not been able to locate any record of her paying her dues for 1976, and cannot recall seeing her at a meeting since Nov. 1975.

Mr. Raymond objected to the endorsement of Mr. Murphy, saying that all other organizations notify the members of endorsement meetings etc. etc.

I then explained that we are not "all other organizations" and that we had spent considerable time to form a by-law that would best insure that the endorsements made by the club, would be made by the members that were active and came to the meetings. I also pointed out that these by-laws were approved Sept. 15, 1975 ...

After the meeting I spoke with Ms. Raymond and she seemed to loose control, swearing, ... This is not what I would expect, either from a lady, a gentleman or a county supervisor. This indicates two things to me: 1. She cannot operate under pressure and 2. She realizes the importance of the endorsement of the Pleasanton Area Democratic Club.

VMH plans drop in drug prices

LIVERMORE — Drug prices will be going down at Valley Memorial Hospital's pharmacy.

Prices will be adjusted to save patients about $22,000 over the rest of the fiscal year. The bonanza is coming because the hospital is spending some $22,000 less in malpractice insurance costs than had been budgeted.

Since the hospital raised their rates recently to help pay for the insurance, it only seemed fair to board member Joe Stadky to lower VMH prices accordingly when insurance costs turned out to be a bit lower than expected.

The savings were actually realized in the hospital's outpatient coverage. But most of their outpatient activity — some 1,500 visits last month — is at the Family Medical Center in San Ramon, a money - losing venture.

So, it didn't seem logical to Stadky to reduce prices at the medical center and make the loss even greater. "The general pharmacy is a big money-maker," said Stadky. "That would really be the place."

Administrator Tom Andrews observed many elderly people are the heaviest purchasers of prescription drugs at the hospital. "This will save their real dollars, not their insurance dollars," he said.

Other good news for the board came in the form of an announcement from assistant administrator Larry Freeman that the hospital has been unusually full over the summer — some 70 per cent occupancy.

giving them $99,000 surplus for those two months instead of the budgeted $41,000.

The board authorized administrator Andrews to spend $32,000 on buildings and grounds maintenance at both the Livermore hospital and the San Ramon medical center.

They also contemplated a $400,000 building project which would put a third story on a portion of the hospital for a new and efficient coronary care unit (CCU) and intensive care unit (ICU).

The units will be separated but all visible from a single nursing station. Plans call for four CCU beds, three ICU and three which could be used by either unit.

Since the hospital could cut down on the number of nurses needed to oversee the units (currently there are two separate facilities with duplication of staff), Andrews estimates the $400,000 cost will pay for itself in reduced expenditure for nurses' salaries.

Building Committee chairman Jack Bras reported that architectural plans are 80 per cent complete and the unit should be ready to use by next summer.

Housing unit

PLEASANTON — Housing Authority commissioners resolved last week to ask the city council to reserve 150 connections either in the Sunol Sewage Treatment Plant or the VCS plant for the housing units which will replace Komandorski Village.

The action came after the commissioners formed subcommittees to explore various aspects connected to replacement of the housing.

The commission is also conducting a survey in Komandorski Village to learn what tenants prefer in the way of replacement housing, citing, for example, number of bedrooms desired and location for the units.

Pleasanton man pleads innocent in shooting

LIVERMORE — A Pleasanton man has pleaded not guilty to charges of firing a pistol shot into a car he was following.

John Manuel Morales, 36, of 6070 Sequoia Ct., was charged with the felony August 31 after a complaint was registered by Howard Davis, an employee of the 7-11 store at 3760 Hopyard Rd.

Police reports indicate Morales had words with Davis over an earlier battery complaint involving the suspect's daughter Thelma Morales.

As Davis was driving from the store, according to police, Morales followed.

Davis "heard a sharp report as though a gun had been fired," said Pleasanton police sergeant Gary L. Moore, "and felt particles of something strike him."

"The victim heard a second gunshot as he was accelerating to get away," Moore added.

Police found a copper case lead projectile inside Davis' car.

Morales is charged with assault with a deadly weapon, attempted murder and use of a pistol in a felony.

In other court action: — Russell Lee Palmer,

19, 1916 Broadmoor St., Livermore, and Christopher Laurence Larsen, 19, 1904 Broadmoor St., were arraigned on charges of burglarizing the People's Church, 1135 Bluebell Drive Sept. 12.

Police said the suspects allegedly sprayed fire extinguishers in the sanctuary, damaged a trophy on display and took food from the kitchen.

— Lawrence Edward Baslee, 18, of San Leandro pleaded not guilty to charges of escaping from Santa Rita prison Sept. 13. Accused of squeezing through a hole in the minimum security section of the jail, Baslee is scheduled for a preliminary hearing Sept. 29.

Park district to buy
Mt. Diablo foothills

Contra Costa County will have a new regional park, flanking the state park on Mt. Diablo.

Diablo Foothills Regional Park is its name. It will encompass 488 acres of lands lying across Shell Ridge, the prominent landmark east of Walnut Creek. The East Bay Regional Park District, serving Alameda and Contra Costa Counties, will be paying $925,000 for the property, which was formerly part of Castle Rock Ranch.

The acreage fits like a jigsaw puzzle amid lands of Walnut Creek Open Space on the west, and lands along the southeast proposed by the state for expansion of Mt. Diablo State Park. Castle Road Road intersects the site on the north end.

Other lands adjacent on the east are Ginochio Livestock Co. and Angel Kerley grazing lands and Castle Rock Park, a privately owned swimming and picnicking facility.

According to Hulet Hornbeck, EBRPD's chief of land acquisition, the property will be in "land bank" status pending creation of Diablo Foothills Regional Park. Meanwhile, he said, its acquisition will insure that it remains in permanent open space to offer public recreational opportunities in the future.

"This will be a major link along Shell Ridge in the regional trail leading from Walnut Creek to Mount Diablo State Park and could form part of the trail linking Briones Regional Park and Mount Diablo," he said.

Most of the site is on ridgelines having gentle slopes, dropping off on the east to the steep sides of Pine Canyon, says the geological report.

A peach tree appetite

Horde of hungry caterpillars hit valley

With a shudder, Deborah Edwards described the invaders who had chomped their way halfway down her peach tree.

"They are yellow and black," she reported. "With horrible little red heads."

Her voice rose a little.

"Nobody knows what they are, but they are VORACIOUS."

Mrs. Edwards lives on Shearwater Court, in the Pleasanton Valley tract where houses are large and gardens carefully nurtured.

Maybe that's why the neighbors are in a dither about the plague of ugly little caterpillars with spiny bodies and heads that look like blood blisters.

Peach trees and wisteria and apple trees and flowering cherry trees are losing their leaves under the onslaught. When Mrs. Edwards asked a nurseryman and an exterminator in Pleasanton what the creatures were, they couldn't tell her. But they found that a god dose of poisonous Isotox would kill all but the hardest as they clung to the undersides of leaves and munched away.

One specimen, taken for dead as it stiffly clutched a branch, was popped into a pickle jar along with some half-chewed leaves.

First stop for identification was the agriculture office on Railroad Avenue, Livermore. Nobody in the biologist was out in the field.

Next stop: the county soil conservation office on Catalina Drive, on the other side of Livermore.

"Ugh," agreed the staff as they clustered round the caterpillar, which had seized his chance to become a celebrity and was crawling languidly up a leaf.

"Really ugly," they said admiringly. "What do the egg cases look like? Do they cling to the edge of the leaves and wave back and forth?"

They finally admitted insects weren't their specialty, and recommended Alden Lane Nursery up the street.

"Ah, yes!" Jacquie Williams said immediately. "A redheaded caterpillar. Really voracious."

Jacquie, the general manager, pulled out a big entomology book which had further information. It was a "red-humped caterpillar," or "Schizura concinna." A good cure is to spray on Dipel, a bacterial parasite, which makes the caterpillars stop feeding almost immediately and die soon afterwards.

Or, blow them away with Diazinon, suggested Jacquie.

She said their life span will probably be no longer than four to six weeks before they spin cocoons, emerge as moths and lay eggs which will hatch into more greedy caterpillars.

The invasion is seasonal and "redheads" are found throughout the Valley. Trees survive, unless they're defoliated over and over.

Teacher negotiations bog down

Three teacher representative council or general meetings in the next two days will determine what future actions teachers in the Pleasanton, Amador and Murray school districts will take.

Bob Kroetch, president of the Murray Teachers Association, said Friday the teachers negotiating table will return to the negotiations table Monday at 3:30 p.m.

However, the major new action of the three teacher groups is centered on the Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association rep. council vote declaring an impasse in negotiations. The vote was taken Friday and further asks that an Educational Employment Review Board (EERB) mediator be brought in.

AVSEA represents teachers in the Amador Valley Joint High School District, which includes Amador Valley, Foothill, Dublin and Valley Continuation. The vote to request an EERB mediator be brought in is the first such action by any valley teachers group.

Amador district teachers went to a minimum duty day Wednesday, AVSEA spokesman Jim Eaton declaring the action was participated in by 90 per cent of the district's 225 teachers.

Unit president Jim Carroll said Friday the group had no plans to resume such an action, intending to declare an impasse to open the way for state board mediation.

Pleasanton district teachers will hold a general meeting Tuesday at 3:45 p.m. at the Pleasanton Hotel. Amador Valley Teachers Association (AVTA) president Tom Zach said he hoped to have a California Teachers Association staff member present to serve as a reference person.

Negotiations over salary and two other principal items, binding arbitration and agency shop, have also stalled in the Pleasanton district. The latter includes seven kindergarten through eighth grade schools.

Kroetch reiterated what he termed "a successful week for us," calling attention to the number of teachers who boycotted Back-to-School Nights.

However, a chink in the MTA's armor appeared at Nielsen where all teachers were on hand for a Back-to-School night. One district trustee termed the event "very successful."

Kroetch alleged that a seventh-eighth grade dance slated for Nielsen School this past Friday would be boycotted, though.

He said that 26 of 27 teachers at Lydixen School did not show up for a Back-to-School night, 10 of 14 at Cronin, 8 of 14 at Murray and 42 of 48 at Donlon School.

Kroetch also contended that similar events at Fallon and Frederiksen would also see few teachers showing up for the traditional beginning of year programs.

He said the boycott would continue through Oct. 6 at which time the MTA rep. council would determine what action to take at that point if negotiations were still unsettled.

Pleasanton Ridge project delayed in Hayward action

Alameda County Bureau HAYWARD—A decision on zoning that could open up the Pleasanton Ridge to as many as 59 homes has been continued for two months by the Hayward City Council.

Commissioners, faced with a request to approve building sites on the top of the ridge within the city limits, will wait for input from the county planning department, its commissioners and the board of supervisors.

City commissioners reportedly felt "some sympathy" toward the request, according to their staff, and felt it would be "no big deal" to put one house on 40 acres" as currently proposed by the land owners.

Applications have been made by land owners T. V. Schuhart and Stone and Youngberg Investment Securities. The owners already have lined up prospective buyers.

children also survive.

A rosary will be recited at 8 p.m., Sunday, in the chapel of the Callaghan Mortuary, 3833 East Ave., Livermore. Funeral mass will be held at 10 a.m., Monday, in St. Michael's Catholic Church followed by burial in the family plot at the church cemetery.

Schuhart, limited by an agricultural preserve contract with the city that cuts any home development to 20-acre minimum lots, can build as many as 19 homes on his 380 acres, if, as one planning department spokesman said, a favorable decision "opens the door" for home building on the ridge.

Stone and Youngberg could file a subdivision map and build up to 40 homes.

The owners acquired the land through bond foreclosures. Developer Harlan Geldermann once proposed pulling together 5,000 acres on the ridge into "Pleasanton West."

While the county commission and supervisors do not have jurisdiction over the land, city staff said they had requested the delay "indirectly through channels."

City commissioners want more input from the county about Santos Ranch Road that twists up the eastern slope of the ridge, and about the multi-jurisdictional Ridgeland Study currently being developed.

Hayward also will notify Pleasanton city officials of the request.

A date for the next hearing has not been set, but staff expects the matter to be taken up again at the end of November or first of December.

Special career for hospital nurse

Crisis therapist is there when you need her

By Arline Butterfield

Warm — Strong — Caring — These are the adjectives that come to mind when you meet Maralyn Beadleson, the crisis therapist at Valley Memorial Hospital in Livermore.

Maralyn is with the Crisis Intervention Service which started in June of this year on a part time trial basis. It is now full time.

Maralyn says her position of Crisis Therapist is unique in that she is a registered nurse as well as a therapist. Mrs. Beadleson finds herself at the forefront of a new career opportunity as crisis therapy is becoming a clinical specialty for nurses. But she decided rather late, only six years ago when her children were entering adolescence, that she wanted a career. Having no idea at that point what her future profession should be, she did research at the library on careers and professions, and decided on nursing.

Initially she started at Chabot College but when she found out she could get into the bachelor of science program in mid-year 1971 at San Jose State University, she slept on the lawn all night in front of the administration building so that she would be the first in line to register.

It was during her senior year in nursing school she decided on psychiatric nursing as her field. It was then she came into contact with patients who were in emotional crisis. She soon learned to enjoy working with these people, helping them to solve their problems.

"I began to enjoy it. I found I could be of help, could establish a caring relationship. I was encouraged to consider psychiatric nursing."

After receiving her B.S. at San Jose State University in 1974, and passing the state exam for registered nurses, she started work at Livermore Veterans Hospital where she led group therapy, did individual counseling and problem solving with patients. She found it extremely rewarding.

But her education was not yet over. She was awarded a grant by the National Institute of Mental Health to return to college full time at the University of California Medical School in San Francisco. All she remembers about applying for such a grant is that she put her name on some list once, never expecting to hear about it again.

She finished her masters work in one year and one quarter. She describes the situation as "beating my brains out to get through." Then she graduated in Sept. 1975 with great dreams of becoming a therapist. Those dreams didn't immediately work out.

During clinical residency training she did family, group and individual therapy, hoping to do that kind of therapy when she graduated. But then the reality of the employment situation hit her. There were no job openings for that kind of therapy position for nurses just then. However, she did get on the nursing staff of Highland Hospital.

At Highland, she was able to do psychiatric assessment of patients who came in on an emergency basis. Patients were acutely ill, but able to recover quickly. Maralyn states: "It was a growth experience for me. Everyone, the nursing staff, the physician and the therapist worked together to get the patient back home as soon as possible. It was a crash program. This was an important step for me in dealing with acute crisis situations."

When asked the meaning of intervention in this context, Maralyn explained, "We intervene with what is happening in the patient's system at that moment. We say, 'Stop!' Let's see what's happening."

A registered nurse as well as a therapist, Maralyn Beadleson of Valley Memorial Hospital lends support and strength to help people cope with stress. Her natural insight and extensive training put her at the Forefront of a new career in nursing.

"We intervene. We lend our strength, our knowledge, our support to assist the patient in resolving what's happening in his life."

Maralyn says she encourages people to come in. "They may be embarrassed but once we talk to them, they feel we care. They are treated with respect."

Maralyn indicates that the Crisis Intervention Service is for any person who has reached a point of crisis in his life, whose normal ways of coping with stress are not working, are not solving the problem, and are not bringing relief. These are the times persons might feel overwhelmed by their problems and in talking with Maralyn perhaps could get started solving their own problems again.

Concerning family problems, Maralyn brings to her job the understanding which comes from experience after raising four children. Maralyn says she is a typical mother with the same worries and concerns of most mothers. "I enjoy adolescents very much. I miss all the teenagers I had at my house. All the neighborhood kids came with their problems."

A personal crisis for Maralyn was the recent marriage of her eldest son. She characterizes this as "a heavy trip for me." She thought all the things mothers often think in such a situation. "He isn't old enough. He isn't mature enough. I wish he would marry more traditionally."

Aside from all those mother-type thoughts she likes her new daughter-in-law very much. But for awhile she didn't feel prepared. "He gave me little hints, but I didn't see it or hear it. It's hard to be detached about your own family."

But she did adjust, and now is quite happy about the event.

Another difficult point for Maralyn in her personal life was when another son, whom she thought of as her bright and shining star, academically speaking, decided to forsake the academic life and go into the Marines. Initially, his entry into the service was an acute disappointment to her, but he has done very well, and she finds that she is now very proud of his achievements in the service.

She has a daughter in her final year at the University of Utah, majoring in nutrition, and Bart, her youngest son is a high school student. She says she worries about him at times, but he is very active, always smiling, and keeps her on her toes.

When it comes to raising children, Maralyn believes most children want structure although they act like they don't want it. Acting out, according to the mother, nurse and therapist, usually means the child wants you to set limits and to make them clear.

The importance of family life is stressed by Maralyn in her own feeling for family get-togethers. She likes to do things with family members "because I really believe that for children, being with aunts and uncles supplies a lot of caring and loving. I foster a lot of contact and getting together with family: aunts, uncles and cousins."

"People who love you and your children, and care about and are interested in you, can bring a special quality and dimension into your life, particularly for the children."

"It doesn't leave the children totally dependent on their parents for all their caring, support gratification. In the past a kid could go to his kin for support if a crisis arose, but because of our mobility, and we live in our little houses with mother, father, and are totally dependent... It is a very stressful situation." Boating and water-skiing are two of the activities Maralyn indulges in with her family. But her favorite hobby is reading. A voracious reader, classic Russian literature is her most favored fare, Dostoyevski her favorite author. "From the heights to the depths of despair, that's what life is all about. That's my therapy to get away from pressures."

Another interest for Maralyn is politics. She is the Alameda County representative for the political arm of the California Nurses Association: The Associates for Better Health. They lobby, they review voting records of legislators as far as health issues are concerned. And they endorse candidates for election.

Crisis intervention has its own theoretical modalities and guide - lines, but according to Maralyn, each therapist brings his own qualities, his own expertise, and experience. As crisis therapist, Maralyn Beadleson brings together her experience with the family, her training as nurse and therapist, her vital interest in good health in the community, and her desire to be of help to individuals in a crisis.

"Our service is a one contact, one-shot deal. Patients come in in crisis. We assess, we intervene, we support. If one contact is not enough, we suggest other sources for continuing support ... for a short or longer time, if the person feels he needs it."

"It's nice we have understanding of local resources, and can make appropriate referrals. Each time I see a patient and decide what referral to make, that is communicated to the Emergency Room physician for approval. We have excellent rapport."

"We also offer consultation for patients who are in the hospital." If they are feeling anxiety about their illness or some aspect of their treatment, they may consult with the crisis therapist.

Patients are referred to her by physicians or they may walk in off the street. Warmth, strength and caring is what they find, in talking it over with Maralyn.

"I do care," says Maralyn. And you know she is sincere.

Valley book club set syllabus

A contemporary work, "Symposium" by Nikos Kazantzakis, will be the topic of discussion Tuesday, Oct. 5 at the first meeting of the Valley Great Books Discussion Club.

The book is available in paperback edition, and persons interested in observing the group may find it stimulating reading whether they choose to join the group or not.

The syllabus of reading this year will alternate classic authors Plato, Hume, Calderon, Virgil and St. Paul with current writers Chekhov, Crane, Lessing and Mann. The group meets the first Tuesday evening of each month at Homestead Savings and Loan in Dublin.

Great Books are part of a non-profit national program promoting continuing education through reading fine literature and sharing it in a relaxed atmosphere. The group, in its sixth year, comprises members from Pleasanton, Dublin, San Ramon and Livermore.

A set of standardized volumes is available for $9.50, or books may be obtained at the library. There is no other charge. For information contact Jan Beerntsen at 846-4904.

All-American square dance

In this bicentennial year, square dancing has been named the national dance, according to the Eagle Squares club of Livermore.

The club believes that square dancing music is no longer "barnyard" but as popular as songs like "Tie a Yellow Ribbon."

The Eagle Squares host their annual beginners class with open registration through Sept. 30. For information call 447-5596 or 447-6227 after 5 p.m.

Teachers' rights and the parent

The right of classroom teachers to press their demand for wages, benefits or better working conditions is as basic as the constitutional protection afforded any other working segment in this nation.

It is however the method used to assert that right where teachers part company with many parents and taxpayers.

Granted, public education is a sensitive, emotional matter. Its very closeness makes fair and impartial judgements difficult. School boards are hammered by irate parents — from one side or the other — just as the news media are bombarded with pro and con comments.

This was evident during the great Livermore School District flaps; it occurred again when (and still) San Ramon Valley Unified was having its debate over local educational values. More recently it has focused on Pleasanton and on Dublin, where both the elementary and high school systems are caught up in difficult negotiations with their teaching personnel.

We would not want to make those talks more difficult by adding any subjective analysis of our own, not at this time. We would point out however that the issues of teacher pay and classroom costs are indicative of a national malaise ... our inability to sustain programs and services of the past without spending ourselves into bankruptcy.

The teachers think they have the answers; some parents suspect they know "the real problem." School board members and (hopefully) the press ride a narrow line in between.

At this juncture we can only urge all sides to keep their cool. The record of community support for schools in this Valley is among the nation's best. The school administration, and most assuredly the teachers, cannot afford to jeopardize that support, not even in this critical confrontation.

Parents on the other hand should look back on local education's record over the past months and years. If that experience has been generally good, then it is worth preserving now ... even at the expense of a few "minimum days" or a bus that fails to make its scheduled stop.

The quality of our schools, and the depth of our communities, are greater than any conflict of the moment.

Valerie's ire

Did Valerie Raymond tell off the Pleasanton Democratic Club in no uncertain — but unprintable terms?

Did the PDC president overreact with his own prejudice?

Is there really going to be an election at all for the First Supervisorial District in Alameda County? And does anybody care??

The answer to that last question might now be a qualified "Yes," particularly after Ms. Raymond brought that election to legitimate front page play for the first time in its tiresome trek.

We have all been waiting for either the challenger, Raymond, or the incumbent, Murphy, to tell us something significant about the office they both seek. At least they're supposed to be seeking.

The course of those respective campaigns has been a series of exchanges along the "You're One!" ...

"You're a bigger One!!" line that reminds us of our last school debate, in the fourth grade.

Raymond's clash with the Pleasanton Demo Club might have been one more thrust in that same "Look at me!" vein. But at least this time it was enough to stir up some folks, get on the front page, prompt a little feedback.

Now that they have the voters' attention, maybe the Raymond forces will say something really meaningful about that county office. Then maybe, just maybe, Supervisor Murphy will make a declarative statement of his own ... something more than "Don't ask me, ask the State Legislature!"

If a front page flap over Valerie's tough talk with her once - friendly Demos is what it takes to get that contest off dead center, then don't knock it. Anything's better than that awful silence.

Volunteer Bureau booster

Editor, The Times:

For the past six weeks I have been working as a volunteer in the office of the Valley Volunteer Bureau, and am moved to write your readers about the wonderful job this organization is doing for the community.

I live in Oakland and have not yet moved to the Valley area. For several years my husband and I have been looking for a smaller wholesome community in the Bay Area in which to raise our two small daughters, a community with that sense of warmth and people to people contact which seems in short supply today. The Valley attracted us, and my sister in Livermore, Ann Soares, showed me the newspaper article featuring Volunteer Bureau requests. I decided to work at the Volunteer Bureau office twice a week, to learn about the community.

I have been tremendously impressed by the creativity, enthusiasm, and sound business practices of this organization. Excellent office procedures are maintained in the midst of a constant flow of community calls and visitors and a daily supply of new projects and ideas. It is heartening to me that there are so many good people of all ages left in this world, willing to come forward to help build the community in any way they can.

Each person who comes in is interviewed about his or her interests and preferences, so people end up doing what interests them most. I feel it is the personal leadership qualities, the friendliness and the enthusiasm of Betty Stalling, Barbara Hemphill, and the other founders of this organization which have made all this possible.

I feel very good about the Valley community and its long range prospect as a stable and healthy family town based on what I have seen at the Volunteer Bureau. Such a network as the Volunteer Bureau is needed to organize and harness the potential which is here. Thank you, Times, for putting me in touch with it.

Sue's View BEEP!

The telephone and its accompanying system are wonders of this era. But the modern versions often baffle me.

The instruments themselves are marvels of ingenuity and engineering; especially push button models. They defeat me entirely.

Panic sets in the moment I hear those beepy bingity - bongity tones ascending and descending some computer - bred scale. I'm certain I'm punching the wrong sequence of buttons and some answering voice will greet me in a tongue native to Outer Mongolia.

As far as the system itself goes...I think it has gone to that big recording studio in the sky.

After dialing I seldom hear anything but the taped voices of Robert or Roberta Robot.

"If you have checked your directory and are unable to find..."

"We are unable to complete your call as dialed..."

All things considered, they do great work but the impersonal aspect gets to me now and then. But I know why all of these things give me the fidgets. I was spoiled by more personalized rural area service during childhood and young ladyhood.

For one thing, the instruments then had more character. The fact replicas are still made and sold proves that.

The first one I recall was a wooden (oak, I think) box type that hung on the wall. A black mouthpiece protruded from near-center, a receiver hung on a hook at the left side and a small handle was attached to the right. Rapid cranking of this handle rang central; who is now known as the operator. You could lay hands on this magical box and know by its solid feel it would get the job done.

My grandfather was a doctor and a lot of life or death business was conducted on this phone. I believe they are collectors items now. (I wonder what that makes me?)

Other more compact table models followed letting everybody know that progress was prancing onward. Ladies enjoyed crocheting doilies to put under them.

But my most notable memories involve the wooden box model and a phone system named Hazel.

She was the central who served several rural communities; including my hometown (pop. 522.). She knew everybody for miles around and vice-versa. If someone didn't have a phone, and most residents did not, Hazel knew the nearest neighbor with one. She would call and ask if they would please hop in their pickup truck or jump on the mule to deliver a message.

To make a call you turned the crank rapidly to ring Hazel. After telling her to whom you wanted to speak she put the call through. The amazing thing was that everybody had a different pattern of rings and she knew all of them. Our number was two longs and a short.

This was a party line system and everybody on your line knew when you were getting a call. The lonely or just plain nosy might listen and make a comment or two. News of births, deaths, weddings

The week in retrospect

Media violence

Two upcoming events, one a nation-wide survey and the other a symposium being organized by a former Dublin resident, will focus on a common subject that is invading our lives in the heretofore "secure suburbs."

George Nicholson, the former Dublin resident who served with distinction as senior trial deputy in the County District Attorney's office, is coordinating a five-day symposium set for late October at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco.

Several parts of the National Homicide Symposium will be of interest to the press; Among these are "Violence in the Media," "The Murder of a Newsmen," "Free Press, Gag Orders and Murder: Allegreza and Simants."

The comment that the press "would be interested" is an understatement. This writer will be in attendance for portions of the symposium and will be reporting back to you on discussions. Symposium dates are Oct. 26-30.

Speakers will include Dr. Donald T. Lunde, a professor of law at both the Stanford Law School and the Stanford School of Medicine, author of "Murder and Madness;" Lowell Jensen, Alameda County District Attorney, prosecutor of Joseph Remiro and Russell Little of the supposed Symbionese Liberation Army; Dr. Jay Ziskin, author of "Coping with Psychological and Psychiatric Testimony;" and Lincoln Mintz, noted criminal defense lawyer.

The nation-wide survey we speak of is being launched by the National PTA and will determine the effects of television violence on children and youth.

A vastly smaller survey and aimed in a slightly different direction was conducted by The Times almost nine months ago. Some 700 grade school children in Murray and Pleasanton district schools were polled on their viewing habits.

What we found is that a great percentage of children in the formative years between 8 and 13 are very influenced by what they see and hear on television. We also found the so-called family viewing and adult viewing hours are a misnomer. Many children are glued to the TV set past 9 p.m. on weekends AND weeknights watching shows depicting violence.

The National PTA feels it has received a mandate for action from its 6½ million members and the general public to launch the project, which will determine the effects of television violence on children and youth.

The project will commence on Nov. 30 with public hearings on the subject, the first of eight such hearings in major cities throughout the country, and will directly involve PTA members at the grass - roots level.

Participation will include monitoring and evaluating TV programs, conducting local or national boycotts of products or programs, and a national campaign of letter writing and personal visits to local stations, networks, sponsors and legislators.

"The public is fed up with violent TV programs," adds Carol Kimmel, National PTA president. "If you listen to what the surveys are telling us — a recent poll by the Opinion Research Corporation of Princeton revealed that 71 per cent of the public thinks TV programs are too violent — you want to know why this situation is permitted to continue. And if you're a parent, and familiar with the negative effects of violent TV on our children, it's even more disturbing."

A 10-member PTA commission has been formed to assume leadership responsibilities for the project and will hold a seminar starting Monday in Chicago.

Valley PTA leadership or members wishing to learn more about this project and possibly participate should contact Virginia Macy, California PTA president, Los Angeles, or write the National PTA headquarters, 700 North Rush St, Chicago 60611.

Letters to the Times

Retarded bus

Editor, The Times:

After reading in your paper about parents who have retarded children going to the public schools, having to wait for the school buses or not being picked up —

I have a retarded child (grown now). I tried putting her in school, but the children were so mean to her that the teacher told me not to subject her to that and take her out of school.

What I am trying to say is parents of retarded are lucky they can go to public schools now, and not wait for buses to pick them up and take them.

Wish I could have kept my child in school.

Teachers wrong

Let's face it. Education is down. Teachers are not teaching like they should. So why should we as parents, keep giving them increases in salary and more benefits. They don't deserve it, not until the education in this country starts coming back up.

I also feel that these teachers who openly break the law should be reprimanded to show our children that you Can Not Break the Law.

I for one parent know that, I will never, after this event, ever support another school bond, for I feel the money is being wasted on teachers who don't care about teaching, but care only about themselves.

Murray's pay

Editor, The Times:

Ms. Lee's letter of Sept. 22, 1976, is not only unfactual, but is the type of misinformation that causes the public to lose confidence in their schools.

Teachers in Murray are not asking for a 12.7% cost of living adjustment. The fact is that we are not requesting even half that amount.

We are entitled like any other citizen to maintain our present standard of living. The fact is that over the past 5 years the average Murray teacher has lost over $1800 due to meager increases and the spiralling cost of inflation.

We receive no life insurance, optical insurance, profitsharing, paid holidays, paid vacations. The fact is we contribute 1/10 of our salary to retirement and only get paid for the days we are scheduled to work.

Teachers in Murray don't work a six hour day. The fact is we spend hours after hours of time for preparation, educational improvement, parent conferences, PTA meetings, clubs, sports etc., etc., etc.

Parents and students in Murray are not in a dilemma. The fact is that the over-all reading and math scores have been on a steady up-swing, and are presently considerably above the state average.

No, Ms. Lee, thank God schools are not a business. For if they were the low achievement students would have been gone long ago for lack of production, and we would be producing 2 million new robots a year.

Teachers love their work and encourage community support. Ms. Lee, you're welcome in any of our classrooms at any time to see what it's all about.

round the town

One of the nice things about having "a big old house" is that folks are inclined to give you things. "We had no place for this split-level china closet with the extended sideboard, and I told my Herman ... 'Herman' I said, 'I know just the big old house where this china closet would fit nicely...'"

We inherited our dining table by that route. The lady of the house has this great aunt, or whatever. She lived in Berkeley. Was getting up in years ... 75 ... 80 ... climbing. Kept saying "I want to leave you young people something nice, because you have that big old house..."

The grand aunt finally went to her reward, while back. We were no longer "young people," and the house had shrunk somewhat, over the years. But that did not change Great Aunt's determination to leave us "something nice."

It was a complete dining room set. Vintage World War I. Looked as though it belonged to the losing side. A dozen pieces, each one six feet long or five feet high. We got a bid on bringing the whole mess into some kind of useable condition. "One thousand bucks," the man said.

For that kind of money, I advised the lady of the house, we could buy a complete dining AND kitchen set. From Sears. All metal and glass. Very serviceable.

"You're missing the whole point," Lady of House advises me. "This lovely old set has been in our family for generations!"

I wanted to ask since when did that side of the family include us in their used furniture disposals. But no sense in starting a family incident, not at a time like this.

Anyway, we managed to salvage the table. Great brute of a thing. Extends out to seat 14 people. But when thus extended, whole blessed structure shakes as though we were dining over an active fault.

"I think it needs something in the middle to stabilize it," Lady of House advises.

I think it needs something like a good axe and a large fireplace. But again, I hold my tongue.

Well, I learned to live with that table. Which was probably a mistake. Because now the word is out. Among all the old ladies. On her side of the family. "They have this big old house and I'm sure they would be delighted to have these lovely things..."

Translation: We can't sell the stuff, shame to throw it away; must be somewhere on the family tree where we can hang it.

Our tree branches are laden. With some of the damndest things Great Aunts hath ever wrought.

"Would you just look at this lovely cut glass pitcher they gave us," my ever-loving partner says upon her return from yet another foraging trip across the Bay.

Thing must weigh ten pounds. Empty. How, I ask, could one fill this with water to make use of same? Would take two strong men to carry it from glass to glass.

"You don't really use it," she informs me. "It's more of a conversation piece."

We have enough conversation items in two rooms to set half the town buzzing. Take that "dinner bell," for instance.

"Notice the hand-carved wood mounting," she advises me, guardedly. Even a woman of her artistic taste has got to admit this one is something else!

Looks like a bunch of Chinese had a field day in one of those "learn to carve" classes. Stands 12 inches high. The bell is suspended under the arch. When you hit the bell ... with the large striker that is also provided ... it booms out like Big Ben. Also makes the Dachshund nervous.

"Be quiet!" she says, to Dachshund. And to me — "You don't have to strike the bell, not really. It's more of an ornamental piece."

For conversation purposes, I trust.

This one Great Aunt is closing out her San Francisco abode. Lived there for half a century. Been collecting "lovely pieces" every day of her life. Some of them no doubt handed down from Great Aunts of our past. It's like a chain letter, with dire consequences for the first one who interrupts the flow.

"I simply couldn't tell her that we didn't want the portrait," she explains to me. "After all, it's been in the family for ages..."

They built houses bigger and stronger in those days, for that bygone part of the clan. The portrait must weigh a ton. Five feet by five feet. Same proportions as the lady being pictured.

"We will need to borrow a pickup or something to get the painting out here," she advises me. Blessed thing's much too large to fit into the car trunk. We have yet to resolve the proper place to hang Miss Five-by-Five.

"In the hallway, maybe," she suggests.

I'm holding out for the shed. It promises to be a lively debate.

"The way I see it, the debate was a toss up — Ford's makeup was excellent, and Carter's hairdo was very sharp!"

Students Rights

Editor, The Times:

I and many other students are concerned about Donlon School. It needs many new improvements such as lockers in the jr. high. We all have to lug our books around to class to class.

We have seven different classes. Our possessions get stolen by other students. We're always running out of things such as pencils, paper etc.

We also should have larger portions of milk. Last year our cartons were bigger now they're cut down on the milk and kept the same price.

We need improvements in our bathrooms. They even lock the bathrooms until lunchtime comes.

I think its about time some student should get a right to there own opinion. What ever happened to the "new" jr. high for the Murray District?

Confusion reigns in Poke loss

MANTECA — A defensive lapse and one costly penalty proved to be the decider Friday night as Livermore dropped its first game of the season, 14-13, to Manteca in pre-season varsity football play.

Tiny James Garcia, a 5-7, 143 pound split end, hauled in an 11-yard pass from Bob O'Rourke with 46 seconds left in the game for the winning score. Just one play earlier, Garcia snatched a 50-yard desperation bomb from O'Rourke over the middle of the 'Pokes' prevent defense to set up the go-ahead score. Those two receptions were Garcia's only catches in the game.

With 46 seconds to go, Livermore still harbored hopes of setting up a field goal attempt for Charlie Bockover. What followed, though, was a myriad of confusion between the referees and Livermore's coaching staff over a disputed time out call and a crucial penalty.

After Johnny Farfan returned the ensuing kickoff from his 13 yard-line to the 35, Livermore's offensive team quickly began to set up for the final drive. But the official signaled a time out and charged it to the 'Pokes.

"Who called time out?" Livermore coach Ron Berg yelled emphatically.

Amid needling from the 'Poke coaching staff, the official declared, "Number 38, white (Livermore wore white jerseys).

"Who's number 38?" an even more emphatic Berg questioned. The coach had reason to wonder. No Livermore player on the field wore a number "38".

Livermore's offensive concentration obviously disturbed, quarterback Rick Gildea threw an incomplete bomb. Then, with 38 seconds left, Gildea fired a looping pass to the deep right sideline that split end Ed Moody miraculously hauled in at the Manteca 25-yard line. 30 seconds showed on the clock.

Back upfield, though, an "illegal shift" at the line of scrimmage against the Cowboys nullified the play and the ball was brought back. When the 'Pokes set up for their next play, though, only 13 seconds showed on the clock. Somehow, 17 seconds elapsed between the penalty and Livermore's next play.

Gildea fired another desperation pass incomplete before being sacked at his own 23-yard line on the final play of the game.

The game was a typical

"I don't believe it" from both sides of view. Livermore, who scored their go-ahead touchdown in the fourth quarter, actually had possession of the ball at the Manteca 16-yard line with 2:45 to play and holding a 13-7 lead.

But a delay of game penalty put them back at the 21 and when Pat Powles was stopped for no gain on third down and eight, Bockover's 40-yard field goal attempt to ice the game was partially blocked.

Given a new lease on life, the Buffaloes began their drive from the 28-yard line with 1:59 left. A pass from O'Rourke to tight end Jerry Mattos gave Manteca a first down at their own 39 with 1:14 to go. That set up the 50-yard bomb to Garcia, who was stopped at the 11-yard line with 1:01 showing on the clock.

After firing one incomplete pass at the goal line, O'Rourke hooked up with Garcia again, lofting the pass just over two Cowboy defenders. It was the same post pattern, although a shorter version, Garcia used to snatch the 50-yarder.

Kicker Jeff Silveira drilled the piskin through the uprights, giving the Buffaloes the point after and 14-13 win.

Manteca seemed to be in control of matters most of the game, although only once in the first half did they penetrate enough for a score.

Steve Collins' dive from the one-yard line culminated a 45-yard Buffalo drive with 3:39 to go in the first half to tie the score at 7-7.

Livermore scored early in the going, set up by Steve Allen's interception of a Rocky Christeson pass at the 15-yard line. Just one play later, Powles rambled 18 yards up the middle for the score. Bockover's PAT made it 7-0.

Those first few series of the game, though, was the only time the 'Pokes had real control. In the first half, the Buffaloes managed to run off 39 offensive plays to Livermore's 17, due mainly to halfback Brad Steele's running. Steele had the ball all night, carrying 28 times for 137 yards. And when the Buffaloes received the second half kickoff, they ran up an offensive plays edge of 50 to 17 after driving to the 'Poke 33-yard line.

But Livermore rebounded from their offensive ineptness in the third quarter. They drove from their own 20 to the Manteca 36, the key plays a 20-yard screen pass to Les Jacobs and Bob Tarte's 13-yard reception on third down and three from the Livermore 49.

The 'Poke drive temporarily stalled and Naish Piazza punted the ball inside the 20. After Manteca failed to move the ball, they were forced punt. The 'Pokes picked right back up at the Buffalo 39-yard line.

It took seven plays to score, with Steve Culy's four-yard gallop off tackle giving Livermore the 13-7 lead with 9:42 to go. The 'Pokes were greatly enhanced by a "late hit" penalty against Manteca on a third and 12 situation after only an eight-yard gain by Powles.

When Livermore failed to record the PAT as a result of slippery hands by the holder and a furious rush by Manteca, the blocked kicked turned out to be costly for the Cowboys.

Glad's top SJ on Nunes' goal

HAYWARD — Reserve Gil Nunes scored with less than 10 minutes to play to give Chabot College's soccer team a 1-0 decision over a lowly San Jose City College team in the Golden Gate Conference soccer opener for both teams here Friday afternoon.

Chabot dominated the contest throughout the first half but with about 25 minutes left to play San Jose began to take charge. The Jaguars threatened several times to punch the ball past Gladiator goalie Pete Howard but failed.

Chabot coach John Shaw replaced four players along the front line and two more defenders in the second half because of ineffectiveness. Nunes was one of those subs and he combined with Tim Wade to score the goal.

Wade dropped a corner kick at the feet of Nunes who then kicked the ball in from about 12 yards out.

Chabot is now 9-0 for the year. The Gladiators travel to West Valley Tuesday. West Valley is one of the Gladiators' top contenders for the GGC title.

Sevo hurt in Don victory

Just when it's becoming fashionable to be wearing purple and gold again, one of the players most responsible for Amador Valley High School's sudden football resurgence may not pull on a jersey for awhile.

With not much more than a minute left in Friday night's 21-0 non-league win over visiting Menlo-Atherton at Patterson Field, quarterback John Sevo, who accounted for 59 yards and seven points, scooted around left end and inside the Bear five.

But, on the play, which came with the Dons already in command, Sevo suffered what was diagnosed as a broken collarbone and may very well join the injury list that has crippled the Dons for the past two seasons.

Senior running back Mike Goodison, who sprained his ankle in the season opening loss to Mission San Jose, missed Friday's game, but was subbed for well by junior flanker Rob Flores. Pressed into service as a running back, Flores carried an exhausting 26 times, picking up 101 yards, and scored Amador's first touchdown.

Meanwhile, the Dons defensive line, led by Dave Sebahar, held the Bears highly-touted transfer from San Mateo, Charles Perkins, to 43 yards on 10 carries.

The Dons got their first TD late in the opening period when Flores capped a 63-yard, 15-play drive by taking a pitch around right end out of the I formation, powering past Keith Young and Paul Bates for the final two yards.

Amador came back for what turned out to be the clincher with 5:13 to play in the third period. Sevo, moved briefly to quarterback from the wide receiver position he occupied much of the game, followed blockers Jim Collie and Bob Koopmann in for the six.

Taking possession after Bates cost Menlo-Atherton its last chance at a score with a fumble at the Don 13, Amador marched 92 yards on 14 plays to score a meaningless TD.

Paul McCleary got the touchdown, grabbing a 7-yard turn-out pass from junior quarterback Pat Inglesby. Steve White scored the twopoint conversion on a pass from Inglesby.

Menlo-Atherton blew a pair of chances, one when Bates fumbled into the hands of Sebahar and previously, when quarterback Ralph Parks snapped a quick pass to no discernable receiver and Sevo gratefully picked it off at the Amador 15.

The Dons, 1-2 in pre-season play, hosts Monte Vista next week as the East Bay Athletic League season gets underway.

A's stay alive

CHICAGO — Solo home runs by Ron Fairly and Gene Tenace and the relief pitching of Rollie Fingers lifted Oakland to a 7-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday night, keeping alive the A's slim pennant hopes.

Fingers, 12-11, hurled 41-3 innings, yielding three hits and holding Chicago scoreless to pick up the win. He struck out one and walked none.

The triumph, combined with Kansas City's 1-0 loss to the Texas Rangers, left the A's five games behind the Royals in the American League West with only seven games to play. Kansas City's magic number for clinching the division remained at three.

Fairly's second home run of the year, a solo shot into the right field seats, came off Rich Gossage, 9-16.

Adams' running sinks Wolves

Lyle Setencich and his San Ramon Wolves are glad they've seen the last of Alhambra's Jeff Adams.

The 6-1, 170-pound senior scored a pair of touchdowns and rushed for 183 yards in 24 carries Friday night to lead the East Bay's No. 1 ranked prep football team to a 19-13 win over the Lobos.

It was the first setback of the 1976 campaign for San Ramon, which started the year with victories over Harry Ells and Kennedy of Fremont.

Alhambra, which took care of College Park in its opener a week ago, is 2-0 entering the first week of Foothill play on Friday afternoon at Miramonte.

Adams' average of 7.6 yards per carry was pretty much the difference in the Friday night non-conference struggle at Knowles Field in Martinez.

Bob Heaston, the Alhambra mentor, said, "We made some mistakes out there tonight and we're happy to have beaten a fine San Ramon team. Penalties hurt us at times and our coverage on screen passes wasn't too good. Maybe we got too conservative in the second half after we got a two-touchdown lead."

Asked how he felt about being ranked No. 1, Heaston laughed and said, "It means nothing right now. If we're No. 1 after eight games it'll mean something."

Setencich, who formerly coached at Albany, said, "Hey, Alhambra is tough up front eh? But we didn't quit, we kept after them. It hurt us when Guy Houston had to leave with bruised ribs. The Bulldogs knew he couldn't pass very well because of this when he did come back in. And Troy Thomas, our other quarterback, was seeing his first game action of the season."

Mats stay undefeated

Visiting Granada High proved to be too much for the Liberty Lions Friday night, as the Matadors recorded a 14-9 win in Brentwood.

Granada scored first when Vance Rushing lived up to his name, carrying a 24-yard pass from Steve Robinson over the goal line.

Brian McSherry's kick was good and it was 7-0.

Liberty came back with a 24-yard field goal off the foot of kicker Willie Reyes, but it didn't take Granada long to open it back up again.

Granada came back in the fourth quarter when Rushing once again carried the ball in for the score. Once more, McSherry kicked the ball over the cross bar for the last Granada point of the game. It was all the the Mats needed.

Liberty tried to catch up in the last quarter with a four-yard TD run by Jose Oseguera. The catch-up conversion pass failed and the game ended at 14-9.

Rushing led both teams in the rushing category, carrying the ball 20 times for 132 yards.

Of the 78 yards gained by Granada on one drive in the fourth quarter, Rushing carried the ball 11 times for 73 of those yards.

For Liberty, quarterback Mitch Ball threw 18 times, completing eight of them for 104 yards. He threw for no touchdowns and was tagged with two interceptions.

The victory keeps the third-ranked Matadors undefeated with a 3-0 record. Liberty lost a 21-14 decision to East Union of Manteca last week.

Boulware runs wild

After being named Alameda County's Plecto prep of the week Dublin High School's Jim Boulware refused to rest on his laurels.

That was painfully obvious to the visiting Acalanes Dons Friday night as Boulware ran for 301 yards and three touchdowns to spark the Gaels to a stunning 36-13 win.

Boulware would have scored four times if he hadn't fumbled on the Acalanes one-yard line in the first quarter. The ace Dublin running back had two other fumbles but they took none of the glitter away from his sparkling performance.

Besides Boulware's performance the Gael defenses came through with its best effort of the season, holding the Dons to 159 yards total offense, 133 on the ground and 26 passing.

However, it was a 46-yard touchdown run by Boulware with 1:47 left in the half which turned the game around for Dublin. Just before Boulware broke through the middle for the score the referees had debated for 10 minutes whether Dublin had made a first down on a running play by John Batchelor. As it turned Batchelor was inches short, setting up Boulware's touchdown burst. The score gave the Gaels a 14-13 lead which they built on in the second half.

Boulware added a

81-yard touchdown run in the third period and a one-yard plunge in the fourth. Jim Batchelor scored the final Gael TD on a 24-yard run around end.

Chuck Gangnuss scored the first Dublin touchdown on the second play from scrimmage when he raced 62 yards off tackle. Acalanes came back on the running of Bob Worthington and Dean Panfil to take a 13-7 lead midway through the second quarter. Worthington scored both Don touchdowns on one-yard plunges.

Dublin rolled up 508 yards total offense, 450 rushing and 58 passing. Besides Boulware's total Chuck Gangnuss added 79 yards and Batchelor 61. Quarterback Sean Mays completed three of eight passes for 58 yards and no interceptions.

Falcons explode for first win

NEWARK — Foothill High School's offense broke into the scoring column with a bang Friday night, as the Falcons rolled over Memorial High School 33-13 here.

Brad Cotton and Russ Humphries each rushed for over 100 yards and Craig Johnson added two touchdowns for the winners.

Cotton got the Falcons started following the opening kickoff when he scored on a 17-yard run. Johnson, Humphries and quarterback Kevin Henderson followed with scores in the second half.

After Foothill took a 26-0 lead into the first half second half Memorial got on the scoreboard for the first time when John Yasenchok grabbed a 67-yard TD pass from Mark Corral. Reggie Taylor added the second Memorial touchdown on a 65-yard trap play.

Johnson iced the contest for the Falcons with a one-yard run with about a minute left. Cotton ran for 152 yards, Humphries 103 and Johnson 86.

Wheelchairs, walker available for needy

LIVERMORE — Know anyone who needs a walker or a wheelchair to get around and can't afford one?

The Emergency Fund Center now has two wheelchairs and a walker to lend, free, to the needy. All they need to get it is apply at the center, 2564 First St., or call the volunteer staff at 447-4186.

Two used wheelchairs and a walker have been purchased with $300 that was raised by Voice of the Valley Radio Club.

According to Nelda "Dirty Sally" Tuft of Liver-more (who chose her own handle because of the dust and mud surrounding her country home), the money was raised with a garage sale, flea market and a "break," which is CB terminology for a party and dance.

The Emergency Fund Center provides immediate relief in the form of cash, grocery vouchers, food, clothes, furniture and gas for people stricken with emergencies such as late welfare checks, fire or sickness.

In addition, the center can refer clients to the appropriate agencies for long-term assistance.

County buys library site for Dublin

DUBLIN — Alameda County assumes it has purchased a two-acre site from Boise - Cascade for the proposed new Dublin library.

Boise - Cascade notified Alameda County officials that they were in receipt of the county's offer to purchase the land. They agreed to sell.

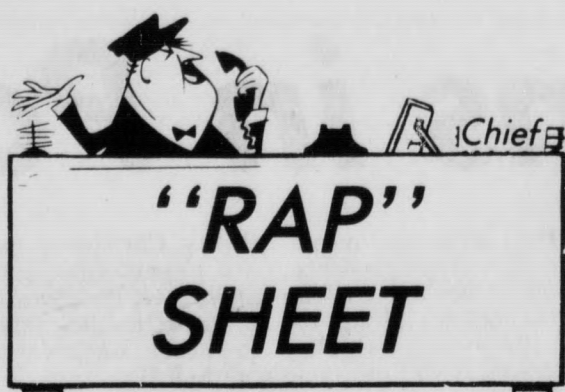

A Boise - Cascade official said a confirming letter would be forthcoming. The deed should be ready in three to four weeks.

The property is located on Amador Valley Blvd. near Amador Valley Plaza.

Although the center makes a small profit from its thrift shop, it relies on the donation of money, goods and time from Valley residents.

Currently, there is a need at the center for non-perishable food; furniture, small appliances and clothing.

Plans are already in the works for the annual Christmas Basket program. Volunteers are being lined up now to help organize the food and gifts to be distributed to those whose Christmas might not be merry without the indomitable little volunteer agency standing by.

Inmate says 'no' to escape charge

LIVERMORE — A Santa Rita inmate pleaded not guilty Thursday to escape charges stemming from a recently reported failed escape attempt in which his wife is charged as an accomplice.

Ervin Leon Barngrover, 26, of Concord, and his wife Cathy Lewayne Barngrover were scheduled for preliminary hearings Oct. 6 on their respective charges. The woman also pleaded not guilty.

Receiving advance information of a pending escape attempt, prison officials quickly arrested Barngrover after he allegedly jumped an eight foot cyclone fence, topped with barbed wire, Sept. 20.

Deputy Sgt. A. L. Chavarria, dressed in Santa Rita inmate clothing, approached the suspected getaway car in which Mrs. Barngrover was sitting.

"As I came close to the passenger door it was opened for me by the female occupant who asked me to get into the vehicle and keep down," Chavarria said in his official report.

He was reportedly asked where "Rooster" (Barngrover's nickname) was and if he had any trouble getting out, said the officer.

The deputy then revealed who he was and arrested the woman.

— A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Oct. 4.

— Ronald Carl Thompson, 18, of Ceres, Calif., pleaded not guilty Thursday on escape charges. Santa Rita prison officials said the youth squeezed through a fence hole in a minimum security section of the jail.

He is scheduled for a preliminary hearing Wednesday.

Pleasanton to seek Camp Parks gym use

PLEASANTON — Park and recreation commissioners approved this city's share of a lease between the valley's recreation departments and the army for use of the cavernous Camp Parks gym.

Pleasanton's share of the annual rent and related costs would be $4,000. The commission will pass the recommendation on to the city council for final approval.

The gym will be used for volleyball, basketball, gymnastics and the women's exercise program.

On another item the commissioners decided not to ban model airplane flying in all parks, but allow it on a park by park basis. It will be banned in parks which are close to homes, permitted in those which are relatively remote from houses.

The commissioners also agreed that the city should install a trophy case at City Hall, with the stipulation that cultural and historical achievements, not just sports triumphs, also get recognition in the case.

Gregory, on the other hand, intercepted two passes from his corner back position.

"We actually felt we could score again," offered second-year Mustang coach Jim Nelson. "But I didn't expect quite as soon as it was."

Monte Vista, which accounted for 171 of its total 195 yards on the ground, drove strictly overland to its first score in six quarters.

Quarterback Bart Adams, on a third and six from the Menlo 12, faded back then decided to run in for the score. "That was a broken pass play," Nelson said. "Sometimes things open up when you scramble."

Title IX legislation

Sex discrimination in schools hit

PLEASANTON — Getting rid of sex discrimination in the schools is more than just a theory to Lee Denlinger.

Denlinger personally gave input to the Office of Civil Rights of the Department of Health Education and Welfare in Washington, D.C. over a small, but important point in the Title IX legislation which is aimed at ending sex discrimination in the schools.

Denlinger was working for the National Alliance of Businessmen in 1975, bringing her considerable educational experience to bear for their business education projects, when she put in her two cents worth in Washington.

She told Rosa Weiner of the Office of Civil Rights that the Title IX process needed a good grievance procedure for students. They were the ones most affected by the anti-sex discrimination act, but there was no established procedure for them to complain about any abuses that might arise in enforcing or not enforcing it.

"Miss Weiner was very interested in what I had to say. I had worked with school district personnel (in Oakland) and with kids and she was interested in why I felt the draft of Title IX needed change. The nice thing was that I was giving her my experiences with children, not with school administrators," said Denlinger.

"I made a strong case for the right of a student to file a grievance and I was glad to see that in the final draft of Title IX," she said.

In her lobbying for her small point, Denlinger learned that the Office of gally, but what we felt we could get," she said. "We may have had some good ideas, but we knew there was no way the guy upstairs would buy it."

There is a great deal which school districts can the duties are one more job added to a busy of some existing administrator.

Denlinger feels the valley districts were "Johnny Come Latelys to Title IX, but in the long run they may come out ahead of other districts."

She was glad to see Livermore's school district adopt a resolution on Title IX and a flurry of activity on it in the Pleasanton and Amador School Districts. Murray School District, where her eight year old daughter, Mish, attends Lydiksen School, sent a good letter home on the subject, she said.

Title IX's provisions have been extended to sex equality in all areas of life, including equal salaries, job access and promotion and so on, but much discrimination remains and it is more subtle than the racial discrimination which was the target of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, she said.

One good example of that was a career woman who took on district consultant duties greater than a male counterpart and was paid $8,000 a year less for the job. The male had a staff and secretaries and she had nothing. She had to use a secretary's typewriter at 7 a.m. to get her clerical work done. The school district broke down eight months later and gave her a typewriter all her very own.

The woman talked to a female attorney about bringing a lawsuit. The good news was that she could win easily and get the all the back pay she had coming to her. She could even file a class action suit on behalf of all women in the same boat.

The bad news, said the attorney, is that for the next 25 years of her career she would be blacklisted in educational circles.

"Women are expected to do more than men, do it faster, and do it with fewer resources at their disposal," said Denlinger.

On a personal level, Denlinger says she is "not taking up the standard for the women's liberation movement and letting it overshadow me. If a person has experience and a great number of jobs, he or she is seen as a professional person, not a man or a woman woman."

Denlinger bears this out well herself. Her first job after taking her Master's in history at the University of New Mexico was the number two administrative job in the Peace Corps Training Center at that university. Later positions included running her own typesetting and commercial art house in Albuquerque for three years, an administrative position for a Spanish-Speaking anti-poverty group in Contra Costa County, and Title IX enforcement officer for the Oakland Public Schools.

Pipeline foes file rebuttal arguments

Rebuttal arguments were filed late Thursday with both Alameda and Contra Costa Counties on Measure U, the $28 million cross-valley wastewater pipeline proposal on the Nov. 2 ballot.

The rebuttal argument favoring the measure's passage was written and signed by members of the Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA), the joint Valley agency that proposed the pipeline.

The opposing rebuttal was signed by Glen Dahlbacka, Livermore city councilman and LAVWMA alternate. He is also chairman of the Valley Residents Committee, formed in opposition to construction of the pipeline.

The proposed $28 million pipeline was conceived after a government ruling ordered the Valley to stop dumping sewage into Alameda Creek, where it fouls Fremont's fresh water supplies. Governments grants would pay for 87 1/2 per cent of the project costs, with Valley residents sharing in the $8.3 million local bill.

Arguments against the Valley Clean Water Pipeline are basically misleading and inaccurate.

CAPACITY is not excessive. It provides for a modest two per cent annual population growth and reasonable industrial and commercial growth for the next twenty years.

INDUSTRIAL capacity will be reserved solely for industry. Industry will provide employment, payrolls, and an expanded tax base. It can reduce commuting and auto-generated smog. The State does not fund future industrial capacity in any case. Opponents have no way of knowing which industries or how many employees might locate here. The industrial allocation is consistent with the cities' general plans and is within reasonable planning standards.

GUARANTEES regarding industrial capacity usage are contained in the resolution calling the election and contracts to be executed with the cities.

COSTS are all a matter of public record. There are no "hidden" costs. The project will not be paid for through taxes, but through sewer service charges. It will not subsidize residential development, as each new residence will pay a connection fee and monthly service charge.

PURPOSE of the project is to correct a serious multiple pollutant problem. It does not prohibit future water reclamation.

"Geldertown" is not within the boundaries of the project.

The Project presents a sound, reasonable response by the Valley to Federal,

State and Regional Water Pollution Control Directives and provides for long-range environmental and economic planning.

We urge you to vote YES!

The undersigned authors of this rebuttal argument in favor of Ballot proposition of Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency pipeline project at the special revenue bond election consolidated with the general election for Alameda County to be held on November 2, 1976, hereby state that such argument is true and correct to the best of their knowledge and belief.

Signed by Robert Philcox, Ronald Hyde, Lila Euler, Dale Turner and Helen Tirsell.)

Against

You see the "ballot measure." You do not see the lengthy resolution which really describes the project. That resolution is permissive and without real protecting guarantees.

The resolution does not limit capacity to 19.7 million gallons per day (mgd). It is limited only by the $8,300,000 in bonds, which includes a large cushion. This cushion and other possible project savings need not be returned to the voters. Such surpluses are explicitly usable for "extensions and additions" of any size, or for any "lawful purpose" of LAVWMA. "Lawful purpose" includes building new sewer plants.

Moreover, if EPA and the State fund a smaller project because of unhealthy air pollution, LAVWMA can build a larger size anyway, using excess bonds or higher sewer charges.

Although proponents represent the industrial reservation as binding, the intent would be much clearer had the wording "4.1 mgd shall be irrevocably reserved for industrial" been included in the measure and resolution. Moreover, it is questionable how the public can actually enforce the reservation if residential conversion is attempted.

Industrial projections based on available land are useless because far greater area is designated industrial than can possibly be used. Furthermore, we pay the full cost of excessive sewer plant expansion for "industrial" uses.

There are questions about water quality and reclamation, alternative projects, excessive size and cost, and possible abuse of the resolution. In March, LAVWMA can present a proper project and properly worded resolution. LAVWMA is asking for a blank check. Say NO now.

Valley Memorial directors seeking identity of critic

LIVERMORE — Valley Memorial Hospital directors vowed to try to hunt down the pamphleteer who has been leaving anti-administration flyers in doctors' mailboxes.

"The board attaches no credibility to these accusations," says a resolution passed unanimously by the directors Thursday night. The flyers had accused administrators Tom Andrews of lying to employees and urged the staff to unionize. They were printed with an offset press on brightly colored paper and signed "VHM 13."

A suggested resolution by board president Ted Fairfield had stated that the board would refer the case to their lawyer for review and "to consider further action."

But, in light of the fact that the culprit has not been found, they downgraded it to "The board...suggests that steps be taken to pursue the source of the documents."

Fairfield added a comment of his own: "I think it's an insidious thing."

Board member Dagmar Fulton observed, "He (the culprit) needs to see a psychiatrist."
